salehalbraik In a small town, two perfumery kitchens laid on the opposites sides of each other on their main road. He walked up to open his store, minutes before she walked up to open hers. Both ignoring the other, but he couldn't help but take a look at her. As he began mixing in his kitchen, by the window, she couldn't help but stare and smile. She quickly turned away, as he caught her. He smiled, without her knowing. It was competition at it's finest, especially today, with the visit of the towns mayor. They've both been working for so long, this was their chance to prove who was the best perfumer in town. He had the expertise of a great mixologist, while she had the best nose in the country. Neither of them would admit that of the other, and hurried up as they saw the mayors car pull up.
